poets for over 65 years

On September 26 poet Carl Phillips was named the recipient of the 2006 Academy of American Poets Fellowship, given in memory of James Ingram Merrill. The Fellowship is awarded once a year to a poet for distinguished poetic achievement at mid-career and provides a stipend of $25,000. Fellows are elected

Of Carl Phillips's work, Academy Chancellor Ellen Bryant Voigt wrote:

It might be said that all memorable poems explore or enact what it means to be human. Carl Phillips's work does both, looking steadily at his abiding subject—the complexities of intimacy and isolation—in sentences majestic and muscular, in lines taut and musical, and in language vivid and exact. These are indelible poems, and the voice in them entirely his own.

For almost a decade, Phillips taught Greek and Latin to high school students in and around Boston. Classical prose writers such as Thucydides, Cicero,

Time to complete dues payments for coming year

Treasurer Roberta Bearden has been receiving quite a few new memberships and dues renewal payments for the coming year, which is a delightful thing to hear, since it eases the burden of last-minute rushes to meet the December 31 deadline. New for this year: the Board voted to re-institute the issuing of Membership Cards to each Chapter for distribution in January.

As we near the end of the year 2006, it's time to make certain each of us has individually paid our dues for the coming year, which are still just $15 annually. And the spouse of a member pays just $7.50, while members under 21 pay only $3.00. If in doubt, check with your chapter treasurer.

And, it's equally important that the chapter treasurers transmit those dues to Roberta in a timely manner. The dues payment should be accompanied by a roster listing each member, including the correct spelling of the name, address, and telephone number, since this is the year to compile a new Roster, and we make every effort to be accurate. We'd also like to have e-mail addresses, to expedite communicating with you throughout the year. If you feel strongly that continued on page eight: 'Dues' and Tacitus, as well as the Greek tragedians were early influences on his work. Phillips writes that they taught him "a great deal about compression when conveying psychological and emotional crisis." Phillips's work reflects a faith in the way a sentence can move over lines to lead readers to charged moments of intense insight and amazing beauty.

Phillips admits that he "came very late to modern/contemporary poetry," and it was when he was in his thirties that he began to publish his work. Since then, his collections have been recognized for their emotional engagement with the timeless subjects of desire, loss, and myth, yet also their very contemporary sense of how we speak in the world.

Carl Phillips was born in 1959. He is the author of numerous books of poetry, most recently Quiver of Arrows: Selected Poems 1986–2006 (Farrar, Straus and Giroux, 2007) and Riding Westward (2006). His collection The Rest of Love (2004) won the Theodore Roethke Memorial Foundation Poetry Prize and the Thom Gunn Award for Gay Male Poetry, and was a finalist for the National Book Award.

Fire at Folger Shakespeare Library spares rare books

A fire broke out in a costume storage area on the third floor above the Folger Theatre of the Folger Shakespeare Library in Washington, D.C. on October 16 but was safely contained and extinguished. The library's rare books, including the world's largest Shakespeare collection, were not affected. Following standard conservation practice, however, the rare books on display in the library's current exhibition, "Technologies of Writing in the Age of Print," as well as the library's seventy-nine First Folios of Shakespeare's plays, were moved to storage. The library was closed to the public for several days.

Located on Capitol Hill, the seventy-four-year-old Folger Shakespeare Library is a world-class research center on Shakespeare and on the early modern age in the West. The library is known for its array of scholarly and public programs, including plays, concerts, literary readings, and exhibitions.

New arts organization to award $50,000 fellowships

A new charitable arts organization called United States Artists (USA) announced last month that it will award annual grants of fifty thousand dollars each to fifty artists from around the country, including poets, fiction writers, and creative nonfiction writers. The USA Fellowships, which will also be offered in the categories of architecture and design, dance, music, theater, and visual arts, are given to encourage recipients "to test new ideas and applications in their work" or to pursue their art full-time. The first winners-chosen from a group of more than three hundred artists at all stages of their careers, nominated by a group of a hundred and fifty arts leaders-will be announced at a ceremony in New York City on December 4.

The formation of USA, whose mission is "to nurture, support, and strengthen the work of America's finest living artists," was inspired by a 2003 Urban Institute study titled "Investing in Creativity: A Study of the Support Structures for U.S. Artists." The founding donors, who contributed an initial $20 million in funding, include the Ford, Prudential, Rasmuson, and Rockefeller charitable foundations. Additional financial commitments from other individuals and organizations, such as Agnes Gund, Eli and Edythe Broad, the Todd Simon Foundation, and the Target chain of stores, will ensure that the fellowships will be awarded in future years.

About the Award. The Academy of American Poets established its Fellowship in 1937. It was the very first cash award given annually to an American poet. Former fellows include E. E. Cummings, Robert Frost, William Carlos Williams, Elizabeth Bishop, Marianne Moore, Robert Hayden, and more recently Gwendolyn Brooks, Lyn Hejinian, Adrienne Rich, Denise Levertov, Jay Wright, Charles Simic, and Claudia Rankine. Fellows are nominated and elected by the Academy's Board of Chancellors. The current Chancellors are Frank Bidart, Rita Dove, Robert Hass, Susan Howe, Galway Kinnell, Philip Levine, Nathaniel Mackey, Robert Pinsky, Kay Ryan, Gary Snyder, Gerald Stern, Susan Stewart, James Tate, Ellen Bryant Voigt, and C.K. Williams.

About the Academy of American Poets. The Academy of American Poets is a 501(c)(3)nonprofit organization founded in 1934 to foster appreciation for contemporary poetry and to support American poets at all stages of their careers. For over three generations, the Academy has connected millions of people to great poetry through programs such as National Poetry Month, the largest literary celebration in the world; Poets.org, the most popular site about poetry on the web, presenting a wealth of great poems, audio recordings, poet biographies, essays, and interactive discussions about poetry; the Poetry Audio Archive, capturing the voices of contemporary American poets for generations to come; American Poet, a biannual literary journal; and our annual series of poetry readings and special events. The Academy also awards prizes to accomplished poets at all stages of their careers-from hundreds of student prizes at colleges nationwide to the Wallace Stevens Award for lifetime achievement in the art of poetry.

Phillips's honors include an Award in Literature from the American Academy of Arts and Letters, the Pushcart Prize, induction into the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and fellowships from the Guggenheim Foundation and the Library of Congress. He received a B.A. in Classics from Harvard University and an M.A.T. in Classical Humanities from U. Mass/Amherst. He later went on to receive an M.A. in creative writing from Boston University. Phillips is a professor of English and of African and

Wild Strawberries

The redwood deck feels warm under my bare calloused feet. I hold a sky blue bowl filled with thumbnail-sized berries, dip one in sugar. A tart sweet taste floods my senses. I am thirty-one, thirteen, sixty once again. The deck cools underfoot as I savor memory's fruit, years of swirling, hummingbirds buzzing past.

Planning a Pièce de Résistance

Rows of lacey vines embroider gentle slopes as they gradually slide into the horizon. Misted by daily showers, intoxicated by the sweet breath of soft breezes, they swoon as a single soul clad in straw and denim strolls among them, stooping here to trim leaves, and inspecting growing offspring there as though devoutly fingering beads in supplication for his progeny's harvest and fermentation in oaken casks hoping to produce a blue ribbon bouquet to kiss the lips of judges and adorn abundant tables of connoisseurs —a tribute to his last vintage!

Drinking Coffee

Late at night when I climbed the three flights of stairs to our Pitkin Avenue apartment my parents were waiting at the kitchen table, drinking coffee.

Did I want some? They asked. They saved the best jelly doughnut for me.

How's college? They asked, and I told them about Chaucer or Hemingway. Chaucer, she's reading Chaucer, my mother repeated. They smiled, clinked their spoons.

In April I met a boy at NYU with a classic Mercedes who wanted to take me away.

When he did, they still sat drinking coffee late at night, waiting to hear about my life.

Mango

I hadn't eaten a mango since childhood, so I bought one. For nearly a week the fruit ripened on my kitchen counter, losing green as its orange and red deepened.

When it gave enough to my touch, I peeled its circumference, as my dad had done. Gazing at late afternoon clouds over water, I leaned against the counter to begin.

The first sliced bite of yellow flesh entered my mouth. Clouds rolled back, and the sun began its early winter plunge. Mango juice rolled down my chin into the sink.

Each piece barely resisted my teeth and tongue before giving way. Over and over I tasted, finally opening my eyes for a last glimpse of mango and sun, slippery orbs of color, disappearing together.

Jack Prelutsky named first Children's Poet Laureate Poetry Foundation's third annual Pegasus Awards honor outstanding children's poet with $25,000 prize

Jack Prelutsky became the inaugural winner of the Children's Poet Laureate award with the announcement from the Poetry Foundation at the third annual Pegasus Awards ceremony September 26 in Chicago.

The new award aims to raise awareness that children have a natural receptivity to poetry and are its most appreciative audience, especially when poems are written specifically for them. Findings from the Poetry Foundation's recent research study, Poetry in America, demonstrate that a lifelong love for poetry is most likely to result if cultivated early in childhood and reinforced thereafter.

Prelutsky, the beloved author of more than 35 books of verse and editor of several poetry anthologies, has been charming children and adults with his witty, musical poems for nearly 40 years. His books have combined to sell well over a million copies, and his work has been translated into several languages. His anthology, The Random House Book of Poetry for Children, is a perennial favorite of librarians.

"Generations of children have learned to love poetry through Jack Prelutsky's work," said John Barr, president of the Poetry Foundation, in making the appointment. "His extraordinary service to an important branch of literature makes him the perfect first recipient of the Children's Poet Laureate award."

Prelutsky, 66, will serve as the nation's first Children's Poet Laureate: Consultant in Children's Poetry to the Poetry Foundation for a two-year tenure. He received a $25,000 cash prize and the Children's Poet Laureate Medallion, which includes the inscription "Permit a child to join," taken from an Emily Dickinson poem.

During his laureateship, Prelutsky will give two major public readings for children and their families, teachers, and librarians. He will also serve as an advisor to the Poetry Foundation on children's literature, and may engage in a variety of projects and events to help instill a love of poetry among the nation's youngest readers. The Poetry Foundation made the appointment with input from a panel of experts in the field of children's literature.

Born in Brooklyn in 1940, Prelutsky didn't begin writing until he was 24. Before that he worked as a plumber's assistant, piano mover, cab driver, standup comedian, and singer. He published his first book of humorous verse, A Gopher in the Garden, in 1967. Since then he has visited and given readings in classrooms all over the world. Prelutsky lives in Seattle with his wife, Carolynn.

Prelutsky's most recent collection of poetry is Behold the Bold Umbrellaphant and Other Poems (Greenwillow Books/HarperCollins). He has two collections of poetry forthcoming this spring, ME I AM! (Farrar, Straus and Giroux) and Good Sports: Rhymes About Running, Jumping, Throwing, And More (Random House). To celebrate the award, Scholastic Book Clubs has announced that teachers who order from its October Lucky Book Club will receive a free copy of Jack Prelutsky's I'm Glad I'm Me: Poems About You for every child in their class.

The Poetry Foundation also announced the creation of a new prize for verse drama. Like other Pegasus Awards, the Verse Drama Prize seeks to bring renewed attention to an underrecognized area of poetry.

"With the creation of the Verse Drama Prize, the Poetry Foundation hopes to encourage poets to revitalize an old genre, thereby benefiting the art form as a whole," said John Barr.

The prize will honor a living poet who has written a previously unpublished, outstanding original verse drama in English. The award recipient will receive a cash purse of $10,000 and a professionally staged reading of his or her winning manuscript in Chicago. Submissions for the award will be accepted from April 1, 2007, to May 15, 2007. The winner will be announced at the Pegasus Awards ceremony in the fall of 2007.

About the Pegasus Awards

The Poetry Foundation believes that targeted prizes can help recognize underappreciated accomplishments and diversify the kinds of poetry being written as well as widen the audience for the art form. With this in mind, the Poetry Foundation has established a family of prizes with an emphasis on underrecognized poets and types of poetry. Inaugurated in 2004, the Pegasus Awards honor achievements not already acknowledged by other poetry prizes.

The Solitary Spatuloon by Jack Prelutsky

At home within a blue lagoon, The solitary SPATULOON Calls longingly as it glides by— "Syrup!" is its plaintive cry. The fowl, both curious and rare, Now flips a pancake in the air. Its tail, we note, is well designed With this peculiar task in mind.

We watch with wonder and delight, Until it vanishes from sight. Yet, even as it disappears, Faint strains of "Syrup!" fill our ears. We wait, and as we wait we yearn, In hopes the bird will soon return. But sadly, in the blue lagoon, We fail to spy the SPATULOON.

ONE, two, three; ONE, two, three: October entices with an Invitation to a Waltz, and November offers Madcap Moments. And coming next year will be a whole new set of topics! The list will be posted on the web site about December 1, and will be included in the December mailing.

After submitting your November poems, be sure to discard any old versions of this page, so that the poems you submit are for the correct topics and that you have followed the current rules. The rules have changed a bit, to make things clearer and the process smoother to operate. Notice that line length does not include the title or blank spaces, and you are asked for two copies of each poem.

Remember that August begins our new membership year- a good time for recruitment! For your convenience we have included the membership form below. If you know of anyone who neglected to renew their membership and wants to re-join, give them this form, but first run off a few blank copies to have available for recruitment.

It's a great idea to place copies of this page on the bulletin board at local libraries and universities, and to carry a few copies with you to hand to friends and acquaintances. One-to-one discussion is our best ally as we continue the drive to increase membership. We need your help!

Among the decisions reached at the meeting on October 21st were these:

the convention budget. • Prize sponsorship. After discussion of the need for assistance with convention expenses, it was suggested to re-institute the invitation to individuals and chapters to sponsor single prizes or entire categories in the contests. These would be categories 1 through 4 in the Junior-Senior Contest, consisting of three prizes of $50, $35, and $20 in each category; and categories 2 through 7 in the Annual Contest, consisting of three prizes of $60, $40, and $25 in each category.

The names of the individuals or chapters who have sponsored these categories would be included with publicity at the convention

• No gift baskets. Although some individuals enjoy this activity (especially those who win a basket), it was generally felt that there was more work and expense involved than the amount of revenue their sale contributed to

Along with many other discussions and activities, the Executive Board reviewed the strengths and weaknesses of the past convention at its July meeting, but waited to plan the scope of the Convention in October.

• Revision in the way the Display Area is managed. Individuals will no longer be expected to be solely responsible for their own

materials; instead, two or three volunteers will be on duty at all times, with one of them acting as cashier. All people leaving the display area will need to pass the cashier's desk and make payment there. Each person who plans to have books or other items for
